

Emotions

Did you know something as little as how an environment is set up can help a child express their feelings, learn about emotions and work on self-regulating skills. Learn more by reading Emotions.

Español: Emociones

Emotions

It is important to set up environments so that children can work on self-regulating skills. Young children may have trouble expressing their thoughts and feelings until they learn about emotions and strategies to handle them. Some strategies to help children include:

Breathing deeply and purposefully can help block the body's response to stress. Children may struggle with the idea of slowing down and concentrating on their breathing. To help children learn to breathe deep have them blow bubbles or a pinwheel when stressed.

Breathing.

Music.

Listening to music can calm children allowing them time to gather their thoughts and slow down. Provide them with soothing music, headphones and a quiet spot.

Sometimes children need to be alone to begin calming down. Provide a rocking chair where they can rock to soothe themselves or a quiet corner with a bean bag chair.

Alone area.

Creative outlet.

Giving children a way to express how they are feeling beyond using words can be a great way to calm a situation. Provide children with a quiet area to draw a picture about whatever is bothering them.

Once children have calmed down and are ready to rejoin the group, take time to talk about the emotional moments. Connect the strategy they used to a real-life situation. For example, "if you were at the park today and got upset at Sally what things could you try to help you calm down?" This conversation can help children learn to identify their feelings and learn to cope with emotions in other settings.

Want more information like this? Text us! Get tips, recipes, activity ideas and SO much more sent right to your phone!

Information at your fingertips!

CCA KS

Child Care Providers
text:

Parents/Families
text:

KSKIDS

TO 59925

*up to 4 msg/mo. Msg & data rates may apply.

Any time. Any place. At your pace.

Online Learning

Log on today and advance your career!

We also offer Interactive Online courses, click here for more information.

Walmart
Save money. Live better.

Enter to WIN a
Wal-Mart gift card!

We will draw a random mobile number each month! Parents text KSKIDS to 59925 and Providers text CCAKS to 59925

www.ks.childcareaware.org

855-750-3343

